MEDIA RELEASE

Two NYC Next Idea finalists from Bavaria

Bavarian tech companies are rising to the challenge in New York City

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

New York, NY, April 9, 2014 – Tech start-ups in the Bavarian region of Germany are proving to be solid competitors for resources in New York City's tech and media sector (nicknamed "Silicon Alley"). The city's Economic Development Corporation runs several programs that provide financial and logistical resources to the tech and media sector, as well as competitions that encourage start-ups from around the world to relocate or expand to New York and contribute to the creativity and drive of Silicon Alley. Bavarian tech companies are rising to the challenge, with the 2013 winners of the NYC Next Idea business competition being Bavarian-designed application KisiBox, and two Bavarian applications, NINU and Magazino, being finalists in this year's competition.

The competition provides the opportunity for six tech start-up finalists from across the globe (this year's finalists were chosen from 240 applicants from 51 countries) to meet with New York entrepreneurs, investors, government leaders and successful New York start-ups, and compete for $35,000, incubator space, legal advice, and payroll and benefits services. The 2013 winners are entrepreneurs from Munich who developed KisiBox, a security and key control app that they refer to as a "personal doorman". After winning the competition, the KisiBox creators relocated to Brooklyn to further develop their app in the midst of NYC's innovative tech and media community.

The 2014 finalist idea NINU is a digital pregnancy companion that provides comprehensive advice and connects with a suite of hardware. The other Bavarian finalist idea Magazino develops, assembles, and sells automated storage and dispensing systems, with the additional ability to license its detection and storage algorithms. The entrepreneurs behind Magazino were 2013 semi-finalists in the Dutch competition Get in the Ring: The Investment Battle.

With another global competition, World to NYC, just around the corner, the supportive and productive relationship between the Bavarian and NYC tech sectors will undoubtedly continue to flourish. Invest in Bavaria's New York Office is partnering with World to NYC's main sponsor, the New York City Economic Development Corporation, along with an exciting variety of companies and organizations.

Subject: Today 1pm - Free Concert in Bryant Park - Boys Choir from Bavaria
Date: Thursday, May 01, 2014 10:50:23 AM
Attachments: image001.png

Dear Friends,

The weather is clearing and in case you don't have plans for your lunch break, take a walk to Bryant Park to hear the Regensburger Domspatzen!

Invest in Bavaria

invites you to join Bavaria's Regensburger Domspatzen choir live in concert at Bryant Park

May 1, 2014, 1PM - 2PM at the Upper Terrace in Bryant Park

In existence for more than a thousand years, the „Regensburger Domspatzen“ (Regensburg cathedral choir) is one of Bavaria's most treasured cultural icons. The choir, which consists exclusively of boys and young men, appears regularly on German radio and television and has released numerous vinyl and digital recordings. It is known for its stylistic versatility and technical proficiency. These "singing ambassadors of Regensburg" have toured in Italy, Hungary, Scotland, France, Japan, The Philippines, South Africa, China and Taiwan, and they are happy to add the United States to this growing list. On this 2014 U.S. tour, the 56 members of the youth choir will be directed by award-winning conductor Professor Roland Büchner, who has directed the Domspatzen for the past 20 years.

The program contains sacred and secular a cappella music, compositions from Renaissance, Baroque, Romanticism and modern times as well as madrigals, solo parts and folk songs.

No need to sign up beforehand for this free concert.

We look forward to seeing you there!

Best regards,

Invest in Bavaria
